

One Lone Angel

(to Debbie Ayers)

Roger Ellis Bruner
08-Apr-1997

With a Jewish feel

♩ = 90

1. In these days of great dark - ness, the right - eous are not
 2. 'Twas in the midst of cha - os, a bul - let struck her
 3. A man stepped thru the cha - os, a stran - ger to them
 4. The doc - tor said the bul - let had passed right thru her spared. Though they're on mis - sion for their God, the dan - gers are quite head; un - con - scious for a mo - ment, she lay still up - on the all. He knew this la - dy would die soon; her life was in his head, and it had done no dam - age, though it glanced a - gainst her real. Some - times the Lord as - sures them that He's still in con - ground. Her hus - band rushed to help her; the bleed - ing would not hands. He led them to the clin - ic by man - y twists and skull. He said, "You are hard - head - ed." She laughed. "Like those I trol by send - ing one lone ang - el forth to lead them thru the storm.

 stop. A friend helped get her to the car, their pass - ports left be - hind.
 turns. The pre - cious mo - ments that he saved helped get her there in time.
 love." while friend and stran - ger went back for the pass - ports left be - hind.

5.

When their friend turned to thank him, the stranger was not there,
 Though this was in an open space with no place he could go.
 They said, "We've seen an angel sent by the Lord today:
 He's come here just to help us and remind us of His care."

(optional: repeat first stanza)